JEWELRY FIRM SUES TO KEEP STORE LIGHTED

Concern Says Electricity Was Turned Off and Sign Removed.

Alleging that they took down his store signs, turned off the electric lights in the store at too early an hour and refused the installation of an electric meter, Morris, Benjamin and Simon Donzis, trading as the Donzis Jewelry Company, yesterday filed suit in the District Supreme Court against W. G. Kinsman, Inc., Harry Roller, Frank P. Leetch, agent of the Colorado building, the American Security and Trust Company, trustee of the estate of Thomas P. Walsh, owners of the Colorado building, and the Potomac Electric Company to enjoin them from interfering with the rights accorded to plaintiffs in an agreement made with the Kinsman Company concerning the occupancy of the store at 705 Fourteenth street northwest. Plaintiffs, represented by Attorneys Pelzman & Wiener, declare that they have been tenants in common with the Kinsman concern of the store since December 1, 1920, and that a sign displaying their business in the window facing the main corridor in the Colorado building was removed by Roller without plaintiffs' consent, and that Roller also had the electric light in the store window facing Fourteenth street turned out too early and refused electric current to be installed for plaintiffs' use in their business.

The jewelers claim that Leetch, the agent for the building, had notified the Electric Light Company not to install any meter in the store without permission from Roller. Plaintiffs ask that defendants be enjoined from interfering in the installation and to order the electric light company to carry out the installation and to direct Roller to replace the signs in the store windows.

OLD-FASHIONED MUSIC WILL SOON COME BACK, SAYS FAY KING

Don't Take Present-Day Jazz Stuff Too Seriously, She Advises

By FAY KING.

Some piano pounder or foreman in a flute factory, I think, once said something about music charming the wildest beasts, but I'd hate to meet a couple lions with no better argument than a ukulele.

I hate to admit it, but I've got more faith in a couple bullets than a ballad!

Of course, the master musician will say there is music AND music, and I guess he's right, because the kind of music we've been having lately seems to make the wilder.

However, this being music week, we shall see.

I, for one, think this syncopated stuff will soon be taking a back seat for the old-fashioned tear jerker. The other day at a show right in the middle of one of those girl acts where everybody shimmies, a dame burst into song and gave one of those broken-heart appeals with a tug on every syllable, and, I'll tell the world, the house went mad, and she had to keep singing it over and over again while the shimmy dancers shivered in the wings!

The other evening a composer whose light operas were the rage some years ago played me some of his, and it sounded so refreshing and restful and pretty after all this muscle dance music we're having! He admitted that jazz knocked him out of the game because he never could syncopate.

but after hearing him play, I'm glad he can't.

Of course we all sing and whistle and dance to prancy stuff they play now, but say what you will, when it comes to sticking in the heart, it takes a nice long dragged-out lyric set to a sympathetic haunting melody, and it has to have a story, and a thought in it, more than a jingle or joke. But any kind of music is better than no music at all.

An ear for music isn't enough! You gotta have sound sense, or you'll take some of that stuff they sing and play too seriously.

Remember some of these birds that can warble that stuff that says something about loving you forever and dying if you should leave, are off the key when it comes to looking for a job or paying the rent in a flat.

That's the thing about grand opera, you can't understand it and so it can't get you in bad!

I know some babies that play a piano so well you want to throw your diamond rings at 'em, but if you will just control yourself and wait around a bit when they start talking you wouldn't trust 'em with a tuning fork!

One thing I like about the player piano—you don't have to practice on it! But personally I love a brass band best!

GERMANY SAYS FRANCE

MENACES HER MARKETS

BERLIN, May 4.—At the annual meeting of the association of German Iron and Steel Manufacturers yesterday, the president of the board drew a dark picture of the future of German industry.

He declared that the newest threat by France to further occupy the Ruhr district means the loss to Germany of its most important coal and iron reservoirs.

"The cost of production is already terrifying," he said, and Germany's competition in the world markets is menaced. The long road back to normal conditions is through grave crises which will necessitate retrenchment in industries and probably result in serious unemployment.

WAR FRAUD QUIZ IS RESOLVED ON BY HOUSE BODY

Rules Committee to Recommend Sweeping Investigation of Contract Settlements.

A sweeping Congressional investigation of alleged war contract frauds and settlements was approved yesterday by the House Rules Committee.

By a vote of 6 to 5, the committee decided to make a favorable report to the House on the resolution of Congressman Woodruff of Michigan, providing for such an inquiry.

Action of the committee followed receipt of letters from Secretary of War Weeks and Attorney-General Daugherty in which they declared they were not opposed to the proposed inquiry.

The resolution directs appointment of a committee of the House comprising fifteen members authorized to investigate all contracts and expenditures made by the War Department, the Navy Department and the Allen Property Custodian or under their direction during and since the late war with Germany, and also the settlement of all contracts by any officer, agent or department of the Government. The committee is empowered, under the resolution, to investigate the facts of prosecution of all claims arising out of the contracts.

STOMACH WAS SO WEAK SHE COULDN'T DRINK COLD WATER

Mrs. Carolyn Fry of Reading, Pa., Was in Terrible Condition From Stomach Trouble—Doctors and Medicines Failed, Then The Reese Formula R-11 Gave Relief.

The statement of Mrs. Carolyn Fry of 219 Reed street, Reading, Pa., which is given below, is typical of many that are received daily by the demonstrators of the famous stomach, liver and kidney tonic, the Reese Formula R-11. Mrs. Fry lives with her father, who is 84 years of age. She is employed at the French Brothers Cigar Factory on Carpenter street. Mrs. Fry says: "For the last two years I have suffered from stomach, liver and kidney trouble, which caused backache, headache, nervousness, sleeplessness, tired feeling and indigestion. My head would ache continuously for two weeks at a time. Everything I would eat caused heartburn and indigestion and gas would form, which pressed against my heart until I could hardly get my breath. There was a burning sensation that extended from my throat to my stomach. I could not eat or sleep, was nervous and irritable. I was always tired and it was only through sheer will power that I was able to keep going. I tried doctors and medicines of various kinds, but they never did me a bit of good. Then I began taking the Reese Formula R-11 and am completely restored.

"I am now taking my fourth bottle of Reese Formula R-11. I sleep like a baby, can eat anything I want without fear of indigestion, the tired feeling has left me and I feel full of life and energy. If you suffer as I did you can imagine how grateful I must feel now that all my ailments set forth above have gone. For this reason I want to recommend this great remedy and sincerely trust you will give it a trial."

Get a bottle of the Reese Formula R-11 today from any Peoples Drug Store or any other good drug store, for there is health and happiness in every bottle.
